Mom may have been stabbed to death in LI

A Long Island woman found dead, whose husband was charged in her murder, may have been stabbed to death before their house was set on fire, police said yesterday. Loventino Cassadean, 49, was charged with homicide after his wife, Felicia, 22, was found dead in her burning home in Freeport. He reportedly was arrested in April for having oral sex with a teenager. METRO/AB

Sitter sentence

A babysitter was sentenced yesterday to 11 years in prison for shaking an infant. Queens District Attorney Richard Brown announced that Ana DeLarosa, 28, was sentenced for shaking the 3-month-old infant after he started crying. The baby suffered a severe brain injury and died on Jan. 4. After she completes the sentence, she will be deported to her native Mexico. METRO/AB

Taxi fares rise 17 percent, few complain

The cost of a New York cab ride rose by 17 percent yesterday, but several residents and visitors seemed to take the hike in stride.

The fare hike — the first since 2006 — follows an increase in U.S. gas prices, which averaged $3.77 a gallon last week, up from about $2 in 2000, according to the U.S. Energy Information Administration.

Some city cab drivers say they shell out as much as $4.50 a gallon at Manhattan gas stations.

Tourists seemed untroubled by an increase that raised the average price of an evening rush hour cab ride to $12.21 for a 2.8 mile ride, according to the Taxi and Limousine Commission.

"When you're spending so much money already, it's a drop in the bucket," said Teresa Henderson, 63, who was visiting from Adelaide, Australia. Henderson's sister, Maria Webb, agreed. "They absolutely deserve a raise," said Webb, 59. "They have to drive in this mad traffic. Plus, these gas prices are outrageous."

But New Yorker Christopher Keating, 42, said slight increases over time would have been better than a steep fare hike. REUTERS

UES rapist sentenced to 20 years

UPPER EAST SIDE. A man was sentenced to 20 years in prison yesterday for sexually assaulting two women in their Upper East Side apartments.

Jason Quinones, 23, pleaded guilty to rape and sexual abuse. According to his guilty plea, at around 4:30 a.m. on Aug. 13 of last year, he crawled into a woman's ground-floor apartment on East 90th Street. Once inside, he took her cell phone away and raped her.

The month before, on July 2, he approached a woman in an East 83rd Street apartment building, followed her into the apartment and sexually abused her.

Weight Watchers on board with Bloomie's soda ban

▶ Those behind the South Beach Diet, Jenny Craig agree with mayor as well ▶ Queens mom lost 91 pounds after cutting 25-sugar-packet-a-day habit ▶ Board of Health expected to approve ban at Sept. 13 meeting

Weight Watchers is on board with Mayor Michael Bloomberg's proposed ban on large-sized sodas, which the city Board of Health is scheduled to vote on next week.

Queens resident and Weight Watchers dieter Rachelle Conley told reporters yesterday she lost 91 pounds in about three years, mostly after shunning sugary drinks.

Before her dramatic slim-down, Conley said that every morning she drank 48 ounces of fruit-flavored drinks and coffee with 25 — "Yes, 25," she said — packets of sugar.

The mother of three banished sugary beverages, pairing her personal ban with exercising near Flushing Meadows Corona Park to lose the nearly 100 pounds.

Weight Watchers President Dave Burwick joined Bloomberg and Health Commissioner Thomas Farley yesterday to voice his approval.

Critics have said the kibosh on sugary drinks larger than 16 ounces is too intrusive and would take away New Yorkers' right to choose their own drinks.

But Bloomberg responded that people can still buy two sodas, and that it simply controls portion size.

"As the size of sugary drinks has grown, so have our waistlines — and so have diabetes and heart disease," the mayor said yesterday.

"In a city with large sizes of high-calorie snack foods and beverages at your fingertips around the clock, it is no wonder many New Yorkers struggle to maintain a healthy weight," Farley added.

The Board of Health is scheduled to vote on the ban on Thursday, Sept. 13, and is expected to approve the proposal. It would go into effect six months from now, in March 2013.

Other diet companies supporting the ban include the South Beach Diet, Jenny Craig and Bob Greene of The Best Life Diet.

What would new restrictions do?

The proposal would ban sugary drinks that are 16 ounces or more at restaurants, food carts, delis and movie theaters, stadiums and arenas. It would not, however, apply to grocery and convenience stores — so you could still get, for example, a Big Gulp at 7-11.

Nude model gets $15K from city after 2011 arrest

It pays to strip down and stand up. One woman is expecting a $15,000 payout from the city after the NYPD arrested her for getting completely naked in Times Square last year.

Zoe West, 22, of Kingston, N.Y., was cuffed after artist Andy Golub applied body paint over her exposed flesh in front of spectators.

She slipped out of her G-string for the finishing touches, but was hauled away in handcuffs by the NYPD and put in the back of a "chilly" police van, according to West. She said she knew being arrested was a possibility, but it still came as a surprise.

"There was a moment of terror," West told Metro. "I just tried to calm myself and go with it."

She added, "It was surreal. I've never been arrested before. And although I have done plenty of nude modeling, being nude in the back of a police van is something I can't really compare to anything else."

After two hours, she was released without charges. But according to her attorney, Ron Kuby, several officers gawked at her at the precinct before she was allowed to dress.

Kuby, a civil rights attorney, argued that West's arrest was wrongful because it is legal to be nude in public in New York City for a performance or art exhibition.

"It's a rap on the knuckles of the police, some of whom get a little overly frisky when they see a naked girl," Kuby said.

Kuby said the city is forking over the $15,000, but the NYPD hasn't issued any apologies.

"We say in the Bronx, $15K is 15,000 'I'm sorrys,'" Kuby told Metro. "I don't expect a warm note with the cold cash."

The price tag is chump change when it comes to lawsuits against NYC; the city spends hundreds of millions on settlements and awards each year (see page 06).

But for West, it's money she can invest or save for her future. She plans to move to Manhattan in October. Although she's still modeling and acting, West said she isn't sure she'd get fully nude in public again.

She said, "I really am not into getting arrested a second time. I suppose it would have to be the right occasion."

Dogs saved from fighting ring now ready for adoption

► Police officers stand with some of the puppies rescued from a Bronx basement on June 21.

Many of the 50 dogs saved from a cruel Bronx dog-fighting ring in June will be available for adoption by the public, the ASPCA announced yesterday.

The dogs, pit bulls and pit bull mixes ranging from puppies to adults, were rescued in late June from a nightmarish basement in the Bronx where, according to the ASPCA and the Bronx District Attorney's Office, they were forced to fight one another.

So far, 26 of the dogs have been placed with animal welfare groups throughout the Northeast, and placement options for an additional seven dogs are being finalized. In total, 33 dogs will be up for adoption.

After being rescued, the dogs required two months of care. They had been traumatized by the fighting and, in addition to medical care and a proper diet, required extensive socialization at a temporary

Super of building charged with running ring

The superintendent of the building, Raul Sanchez, was arrested the same day as the raid. He has been charged with 63 counts of animal fighting as well as various counts of aggravated animal cruelty and possession of a weapon. If convicted, he faces up to four years in jail.

shelter.

Seventeen of the rescued dogs had to be euthanized, the ASPCA said yesterday. Those 17 showed extreme aggression, according to ASPCA spokesman Bret Hopman, and were found to be too dangerous to be handled by people.

Several animal experts studied the dogs, according to Hopman, and the decision was made to put them down.

When the ASPCA and the NYPD conducted the raid on June 21, they found 50 dogs held in the dingy, dark basement of a six-story apartment building in the Bronx. The dogs were forced to live in crude cages in the corner room of a cellar and rarely — if ever — saw the light of day, unless they were brought outside to be trained or to fight in the streets.

The basement included a makeshift fighting arena with seats for dozens of spectators.

Doggie treadmills had been set up, and harnesses, muzzles and syringes lay scattered on the floor, officials charge.

There was also a shopping cart full of raw chicken parts in the cellar, which officials said was fed to the canines.

Police and ASPCA workers at the scene also found a loaded .25-caliber handgun, multiple pet carriers and money.

Lawsuits against NYC expected to cost city $735M

► That's almost six times what Los Angeles pays per capita ► Some view a case against the city 'the same as winning the lottery' ► State has no damages limits

New York City plans to spend $735 million this year on settlements or awards in lawsuits claiming negligence, police abuse and property damage, the most in its history.

The cost of claims is forecast to rise to $815 million by 2016, more than the city pays to run the Parks and Recreation Department, according to budget documents.

Among the incidents triggering payments are malpractice in public hospitals, police

"It's a huge problem for the city, and trial lawyers will say it's only justice. But it's also a matter of people considering a case ... the same as winning the lottery." MCMAHON beatings, improper arrests, collisions with fire trucks and potholes causing accidents.

"It's a huge problem for the city and trial lawyers will say it's only justice," said E.J. McMahon, a research fellow for the Manhattan Institute's Empire Center for New York State Policy. "But it's also a matter of some people considering a case before a New York jury the same as winning the lottery."

One reason New York's legal payouts are rising, according to ► The increase in litigation payouts may put pressure on Mayor Michael Bloomberg as he weighs job and service cuts to close a $3.5 billion city budget deficit. This week, one woman was awarded $15,000 for a wrongful arrest last year for being nude in public (see page 03).

Some pretty expensive loitering

One example of a high payout happened in February, when the city paid $15 million to settle a class-action suit filed in 2005 against the NYPD on behalf of 22,000 New Yorkers charged with loitering from 1983 to 2011 — in violation of a law declared unconstitutional in 1992.

Lawsuits claiming police abuse "are very serious cases where people die or people have their rights violated," said Katherine Rosenfeld, an attorney with Emery Celli Brinckerhoff & Abady LLP.

In the loitering case, the settlement reached $15 million because "they were compensating people for things that had happened over a very long period of time," she said.

the city's Law Department, is that unlike California, Illinois and Pennsylvania, the state has no laws that cap damages or limit liability in suits against municipal governments.

Deputy Police Commissioner Paul Browne, the department's chief spokesman, countered that the Law Department is too quick to settle cases and that some lawyers manipulate the system. "It's a cottage industry, suing the department," Browne said. BLOOMBERG

GOP unveils new attacks

Republicans prepared a counterpunch to the Democratic National Convention this week by introducing their new line of attack with a not-so-new question: "Are you better off than you were four years ago?"

Congressman Paul Ryan and other Republican officials converged on Charlotte, N.C., where President Barack Obama will accept his party's nomination and enter the home stretch of the 2012 race for the White House.

The Romney campaign kicked off its effort to "bracket" the convention with a new emphasis on what it called Obama's failed presidency, a theme Romney himself punctuated in his speech a week earlier to the Republican National Convention.

Obama's storm visit aims to draw parallel on disaster response

President Barack Obama toured hurricane-stricken Louisiana yesterday and promised federal recovery help as he sought to show his administration was on top of the disaster response on the eve of his Democrats' national convention.

Obama was preceded by his Republican challenger, Mitt Romney, who diverted from the campaign trail to Louisiana to inspect the fallout from Hurricane Isaac a day after accepting his party's nomination for the Nov. 6 election.

Flying into New Orleans on a hot, sunny day, Obama traveled by motorcade to nearby St. John the Baptist Parish, one of the hardest-hit communities, where he met federal, state and local officials and then surveyed the area.

He saw evidence of the storm's fury — twisted road signs, toppled trees, blown-down fences, debris piled high and pools of water beside the road. Stepping out of his limousine, he paused to comfort a few residents and hear their stories. REUTERS

Top Democrat likens Paul Ryan to Nazi propagandist

A top California Democratic Party official yesterday compared Republican vice presidential nominee Paul Ryan to Nazi Germany's infamous propagandist Joseph Goebbels, drawing rebukes from both parties the day before the Democratic Party's nominating convention formally begins.

In a story reported yesterday by the San Francisco Chronicle, California Democratic Party Chairman John Burton compared distortions Ryan made in campaign speeches to lies used by Goebbels, a fierce anti-Semite and one of Adolf Hitler's closest cohorts.

"They lie and they don't care if people think they lie," Burton reportedly said at a breakfast with Charlotte delegates.

Stunned by US rebuke, Israel prepares Iran climbdown

► Netanyahu

Stunned by a rebuke from the United States' top general, Israel is preparing a climbdown strategy in its war of words over Iran's nuclear program.

A burst of bellicose rhetoric last month led Western allies to fear that Israel was poised to launch a unilateral strike against Iran in an effort to hobble the Islamic Republic's contested nuclear facilities.

Convinced Iran is seeking the atomic bomb, Israeli leaders have warned of a possible Holocaust if Tehran is not stopped; but the saber-rattling clearly riled Washington.

In a move that dismayed Israeli ministers, U.S. Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General Martin Dempsey told reporters in Britain last week that the United States did not want to be "complicit" in an Israeli attack on Iran.

He also warned that go-it-alone military action risked unraveling an international coalition that applied progressively stiff sanctions on Iran.

Dempsey's comments made clear that Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was isolated and that if he went ahead with an attack, could jeopardize all-important ties with the Jewish state's closest ally.

"Israeli leaders cannot do anything in the face of a very explicit 'no' from the U.S. president. So they are exploring what space they have left to operate," said Giora Eiland, who served as national security adviser from 2003 to 2006.

"Dempsey's announcement changed something. Before, Netanyahu said the United States might not like [an attack], but they will accept it the day after. However, such a public, bold statement meant the situation had to be reassessed." REUTERS

US manufacturing slows at sharpest rate for three years

Manufacturing in the United States shrank at its sharpest clip in more than three years last month, a survey showed yesterday, the latest sign that the slowing global economy is weighing on an already weak U.S. recovery.

August was the third month in a row of contraction in the factory sector, according to an Institute for Supply Management survey. Firms hired the fewest workers since late 2009, a possible red flag for the August U.S. jobs report due on Friday.

ISM's index of national factory activity fell to 49.6 in August, from 49.8 in July, and shy of the 50.0 median estimate in a Reuters poll of economists. A reading below 50 indicates contraction in the key sector.

"Overall, today's report keeps intact concerns that industrial output growth could slow to a crawl in the remaining months of 2012," said JP Morgan economist Michael Feroli. REUTERS

ISM's index of national factory activity fell to 49.6 in August from 49.8 in July.

Auto sales on track to beat estimates

Auto sales continued to show a slow recovery in August as all three Detroit automakers and Toyota Motor Corp. reported gains that outstripped analyst expectations.

General Motors Co. posted a 10 percent jump, as higher gasoline prices spurred sales of compact cars including GM's Cruze.

"Higher gas prices in August will lead to unseasonably strong small car performance across the industry," said Edmunds.com analyst Jessica Caldwell.

Warhol 'Marlon' from 'The Wild One' may fetch $20 million

NEW YORK. Andy Warhol's 1966 canvas of leather-clad Marlon Brando on a motorcycle is expected to bring about $20 million at Christie's in New York in November.

Titled "Marlon," the work comes from the collection of Donald L. Bryant, a trustee of the Museum of Modern Art who bought it for $5 million at Christie's in 2003.

The current estimate is "very much in line with where the market has gone for Warhol," said Brett Gorvy, chairman and international head of post-war and contemporary art at Christie's. BLOOMBERG

Organic food 'adds no vitamins for extra cost'

► The only nutrient that researchers found to be significantly higher in organic compared to non-organic foods was phosphorus, of which very few people have a deficiency.

Consumers shouldn't pay more for organic food because of what it adds to their diets, research suggests. The only gain may come from what it doesn't add.

Organic foods that account for $27 billion in U.S. grocery sales offer no more vitamins and nutrients than conventional products, according to a review of 240 studies done at Stanford University in California.

The research, published in the Annals of Internal Medicine, did find lower levels of pesticides in produce and antibiotic-resistant bacteria in meat.

U.S. sales of organic food rose sevenfold over a dozen years to $26.7 billion in 2010, according to the Organic Trade Association, based in Brattleboro, Vt. While the reports studied didn't address specific health consequences for illnesses such as heart disease or cancer, they offered little evidence there would be any, the researchers wrote.

"There wasn't any strong evidence to support the idea that organic foods are significantly healthier," said Crystal Smith-Spangler, the study's lead author, in a telephone interview.

Organic foods typically are grown without pesticides, synthetic fertilizers or genetically modified organisms; animals aren't given antibiotics. The studies found food produced in that manner to be 30 percent less likely to contain trace levels of pesticides, but they noted that it was uncommon for any food in the U.S. to have unsafe levels.

BLOOMBERG

Exposure

► "This study confirms that choosing organic foods reduces consumers' exposure to pesticide residues, and that the overuse of antibiotics in non-organic production leads to higher level of bacteria resistant to antibiotics in meat," Batcha said in an e-mailed response to questions. "Studies have increasingly shown the importance of minimizing young children's exposure to even low levels of chemical pesticides."

► Of the studies reviewed, 17 compared groups eating organic and non-organic foods and 223 compared the nutrients, bacteria, fungus and pesticides found in the foods.

► The studies looked at a variety of products, including meat, eggs, milk and vegetables.

► There have been no large studies that followed consumers of organic and non-organic foods to assess whether they had better overall health or lower rates of heart disease or cancer.

YOUR CALLING. THE COUNTRY'S NEED.

According to the Council on Graduate Medical Education (COGME), the US is facing an imminent physician shortage, specifically in primary care. Ross University School of Medicine (RUSM) is helping to meet this need by training physicians who are entering nearly every area of medicine, including the critical demand in pediatrics, internal medicine and family medicine.

- RUSM provides clinical rotations at affiliated teaching hospitals in the US.
- RUSM graduates have attained more US residencies annually than those of any other medical school in the world over the last five years.
- RUSM is eligible to participate in the US Federal Direct Loan program; financial aid is available to those who qualify.

Election 2012: Social media has limited role, but Dems take more notice — survey

Social networking sites play a modest role in influencing most U.S. users' political views — with the biggest impact among Democrats, a survey showed yesterday.

The Pew Research Center's Internet & American Life Project poll comes as Democratic President Barack Obama and Republican challenger Mitt Romney are using Facebook Inc. pages and other social media as campaign tools ahead of the November election.

"For most of those who use the sites, political material is just a small portion of what they post and what they read. And the impact of their use of the sites is modest, at best," Lee Rainie, director of the Pew project, said in a statement.

Thirty-six percent of social networking site users say they are "very important" or "somewhat important" to them in keeping up with political news, the survey showed.

The sites are "very important" or "somewhat important" to 26 percent of site users in recruiting people to get involved in political issues that matter to them.

A quarter of the site users say they are "very important" or "somewhat important" for discussing or debating political issues, the poll showed.

A third of Democrats who say their activities have led them to become more active, compared with 24 percent of site-using Republicans and independents. REUTERS

News in brief

Starbucks to offer gift deal through LivingSocial

NEW YORK. Starbucks Corp. — the world's largest coffee chain — is offering consumers a deal this week through daily deal company LivingSocial, a vote of confidence in Groupon Inc.'s main rival.

LivingSocial, partly owned by Amazon.com Inc., will offer a $10 Starbucks gift card for $5 today. Customers have six months to claim the card, which can be used across the United States, according to company executives.

Starbucks planned to offer the deal to members of its rewards program, via e-mail, last night — giving loyal customers the first chance to buy. The companies plan to sell at least one million deals, they said.

Amazon and Epix strike movie deal

LOS ANGELES. Amazon.com Inc. and Hollywood studio partnership Epix struck a deal that adds about 3,000 movies to Amazon's video streaming library, ramping up competition with the likes of Netflix and Apple.

The news pushed Netflix shares down as much as 11 percent and comes two days before Amazon is expected to unveil at least one new tablet computer at an event near Los Angeles.

The agreement gives Amazon Prime Instant Video subscribers access to such movies as "The Avengers," "Iron Man 2" and "The Hunger Games" from Epix's Hollywood studio owners and partners. REUTERS

Doctors warned they shouldn't tell jokes

Medicine is serious — but the people who practice it are not. That's the conclusion of new research in the Mayo Clinic Proceedings journal showing that around 75 percent of doctors have been accused of "humorously promoting death."

The report goes on to suggest the jokes are taken seriously, with more than 30 percent of investigations into accusations of murder or euthanasia against physicians coming from colleagues. "The accusations reflect conflicting beliefs about care."

The study also suggests that euthanasia remains too sensitive a subject to joke about. It follows a 2012 report from the Journal of Palliative Medicine, which found that in murder and euthanasia investigations, "most accusers are health care professionals who are likely to object on moral grounds."

However, a 2011 report from the Hastings Center argued that "gallows humor" can be helpful to medical workers, and it's acceptable if patients were respected. After a traumatic episode, doctors "needed to laugh before they could eat, and they needed to eat to be at their best," said the Center's medical ethicist Professor Katie Watson.

It is a view supported by psychologist Dr. Sandi Mann of the University of Central Lancashire. "Humor is a self-protective mechanism which has a positive impact by reducing tension and helping to prevent burn-out," she told Metro. "But there's a fine line — one of the problems is depersonalization. Doctors can stop seeing their patients as people." ● METRO WORLD NEWS

Combat stress clouds soldiers' power to concentrate

NEW YORK. Stress from combat changes activity in soldiers' brains, compromising their ability to focus attention, researchers in the Netherlands said.

Dutch veterans who served with NATO in Afghanistan showed declines in working memory and capacity to sustain attention in tests done about a month and a half after they arrived home, according to an imaging study reported in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. The structural changes mostly disappeared 18 months after the soldiers ended active duty, the researchers found. BLOOMBERG

Free Lecture Series
Late Summer and Fall: Earth and Metal Elements

Presented by NYU Cancer Institute, an NCI-designated Cancer Center

Nourishing life according to the five seasons is one of the basic beliefs of Chinese medicine. The earth element (late summer) gives us the capacity to understand, while metal (fall) empowers us to keep what is useful and let go of what no longer serves us. Join us and learn simple and effective ways to take care of yourself by being able to recognize when each season's corresponding element is out of balance within you.

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition.

The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Tom Cruise is too good for OKCupid

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

► We can't figure out what test Boniadi wouldn't pass.

► Then again, we can't figure out a lot of things about Cruise.

Although Tom Cruise's reps have dismissed Vanity Fair's latest cover story as "lies designed to sell magazines," writer and director Paul Haggis has come out in support of the article, which alleges that the Church of Scientology acts as Cruise's creepy personal dating service.

In a letter to entertainment website Showbiz 411, Haggis, a former Scientologist, confirms that the church thoroughly vetted Iranian actress Nazanin Boniadi in 2005, then ostracized and humiliated her when she wasn't deemed a suitable wife for the actor.

"I was deeply disturbed by how the highest-ranking members of a church could so easily justify using one of their members — how they so callously punished her and then so effectively silenced her when it was done," Haggis writes. "It wasn't just the threats; they actually made her feel ashamed, when all she had been was human and trusting."

We're not sure what's so wrong with trusting, but human? That's definitely a Cruise deal breaker.

Nicki Minaj a Republican?

Nicki Minaj gets political in her new duet with Lil Wayne, "Mercy." "I'm a Republican voting for Mitt Romney, you lazy b— is f—ing up the economy," she raps on the song, which is part of Wayne's new mixtape, "Dedication 4."

Listen here, people: Whoever tells Mittens that Minaj dressed up like a sexy nun and paraded down the red carpet with a pope impersonator is dead to us. We need to see these two pair up on the campaign trail. We need it.

► This is our little secret.

Get well soon, Billie Joe!

Green Day canceled their Sunday night gig in Bologna after singer Billie Joe Armstrong was rushed to the hospital. He surfaced in L.A. on Tuesday, where he mouthed to a TMZ reporter that his voice was gone, but reports cite "gastric problems" for the cause of his hospitalization. Our theory: He remembered he agreed to be a mentor on "The Voice" this season. We had a similar reaction when we heard the news.

Talking points

Chris Evans, Minka Kelly are back on

Chris Evans and Minka Kelly have reportedly started dating again, rekindling their romance that flickered briefly in 2007, according to Us Weekly. "She did a number on him back then," a source says. "But she reached out to Chris this time." In the meantime, the actress dated New York Yankees star Derek Jeter from 2008 to 2011. While the pair have reportedly been hitting the town in Boston and New York in the past month, Evans' friends hope he takes it slow: "He's still a little insecure, so he's being cautious," a pal tells the magazine.

Jackson reportedly a 'mess' before death

Michael Jackson was reportedly a mess while preparing for his "This Is It" tour in the weeks leading up to his death, according to 250 pages of e-mails between executives for AEG, the tour's backer, obtained by the L.A. Times. "MJ is locked in his room drunk and despondent," AEG's Randy Phillips writes. "I [am] trying to sober him up." Phillips' attempts to get the singer to work didn't seem to go well. He writes: "I screamed at him so loud the walls are shaking. ... He is an emotionally paralyzed mess riddled with self-loathing and doubt now that it is show time."

Justin Bieber adds a little new ink

Justin Bieber's tattoo addiction continues, as the 18-year-old debuted his latest work, a small crown on his chest, in a shirtless photo on Twitter. Bieber's other tattoos include a portrait of Jesus on one leg and a pair of praying hands on the other, the Hebrew word for Jesus on his rib cage and the word "believe" on his forearm. The crown marks Bieber's seventh tattoo.

London calling

1. Long time no see, Jude Law. The actor was spotted looking especially dapper in London yesterday.

2. She said yes! New "Live with Kelly" co-host Michael Strahan got down on one knee yesterday at the press conference to announce Regis Philbin's replacement.

3. Not surprisingly, GQ invited Olivia Munn to its Men of the Year Awards in London yesterday.

4. "Anna Karenina" star Keira Knightley hit the film's red carpet in London yesterday looking every bit the princess.

Phone sex, the movie

► The 1-900 business is very much alive and well, as is clear in Ari Graynor's latest film, 'For a Good Time, Call ...' ► Why channeling a young Bette Midler may create the perfect opportunity for a 'Beaches' parody

In "For a Good Time Call ...," Ari Graynor plays one half of an odd-couple roommate pair (with co-writer Lauren Anne Miller as the more conservative half) who end up best friends and co-owners of a successful phone sex operation. The film gave Graynor plenty of opportunities to show off her comedy chops.

This may sound weird, but this movie really reminded me of "Beaches."

Oh my God, it's so funny. We have a joke that if the movie does well, we want to do a Funny or Die video with Barbara Hershey and Bette Midler called "C-m to the Beaches." I feel like they would do it. I'm starting a Twitter campaign to get Bette to come to our premiere. But yeah, it's basically the same movie, at the end of the day.

It seems in today's Hollywood it's harder to get those kinds of female-fronted comedies made.

There was a dynamic of strength and vulnerability in all those women that I just loved so much — and a freedom in their performances that I just think was so special. Certainly that kind of talent is still around — there just hasn't been the forum to let it loose in the same way. I don't know why that got lost. It's confusing, but it's nice to feel like maybe it's coming back. I feel like there's this really exciting moment right now — specifically with women — of taking charge of their careers, of taking charge of content. There are all these women that are making it happen for themselves. Some people might say it's unrealistic to get ["For a Good Time Call"] made, to get it made in 16 days, to find financing, to get into Sundance, but here we are and it's been such a complete success story. You never know, and you just have to push through.

How important was it for this story to take place in New York? Well, we shot it in L.A., with one day of shooting in New York. It was so important to the

Love lines

It seems surprising that phone sex lines still exist.

► Phone sex absolutely still exists. I think the truth is, even with the Internet, there's a different kind of anonymity with phone sex than with

Web cams and all that stuff — God knows who can record what on those things. And, I think more to the point, people like a little intimacy. We're in this culture of porn, but people, I believe, still want intimacy, and I think some people are afraid of it in real life or don't know how to access it in real life.

story that it be set in New York. The economical reality of this story of why two people that hate each other would be forced to live together and that sense of real estate only really happens in New York. It's not the same in L.A.

► Jeffrey Dean Morgan stars in "The Possession," in theaters now.

A man possessed

► Jeffrey Dean Morgan insists that 'The Possession' isn't a horror film ► But it has its share of demons Jeffrey Dean Morgan is all for you getting scared watching his latest, "The Possession," but it's not a horror movie — he swears. The film follows a young girl who starts displaying disturbing behavior after her family purchases an old Hebrew artifact, with Morgan playing her beleaguered father. Despite the exorcism, Morgan makes his case for "The Possession" being more of a character piece than a fright fest.

What was the initial draw for you for this project?

Everybody wants to label this as a horror movie, and I never considered it to be a horror movie going in. It actually had a story to it, and I'm so used to horror movies this day and age being found footage, shaky camera, just a f—ing visual onslaught of gore. This movie actually had a story and it reminded me of the movies that I thought were scary — "The Exorcist" and "Rosemary's Baby" and "The Omen" — where you could become invested in those characters. This had that. [I play] a recently divorced guy trying to be a good father and sort of failing miserably with two teenage

Quoted

JEFFREY DEAN MORGAN

We're compelled

Why do you think demonic possession continues to be such a popular topic for horror films?

► Yeah, I mean people go see these movies, for sure. I don't know, I didn't ever really put it together, but it's always the kid who gets possessed. And the parents are trying to, I guess, save the day — with a priest or a rabbi, I guess, in our case. But I just think a child getting possessed is ... what is more horrific for a parent than that? And I think that's something that maybe people can somehow relate to. And what 11-year-old girl isn't possessed?

daughters. So you've got a family that's kind of been troubled at the heart of this. And then of course there's demons inside people, so there's that. [Laughs]

Naturally — that's kind of a given.

But it's really a character piece. I think it really gives the opportunity for us to act, and for [director] Ole [Bornedal] to direct, and that helps a great deal when doing this kind of thing.

So many movies about possessions claim to be based on true stories.

I'm a skeptic when it comes to all that paranormal activity and craziness and possession — but in doing the little bit of research that I did for this movie, there's some scary s— out there. You can see it on the Internet, actual exorcisms and stuff that have happened. I've got to wonder how that is there. I mean, it doesn't look staged to me, and it's super-scary. But I think there's that element that this could be a real thing. I think because of that it's interesting subject matter.

Apple sends out invites for the iPhone 5 event

- ▶ Company is expected to officially unveil the smartphone on Sept. 12
- ▶ Rumored upgrades include larger screen and high-speed LTE connection

Apple just sent members of the press invitations to an event on Sept. 12.

With the prominent number "5" in the invitation's image, the event is undoubtedly when the company will unveil its next iPhone, referred to as the "iPhone 5" by the media.

San Francisco's Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, Apple's traditional choice for big unveilings, will serve as the venue. The event will begin at 10 a.m. Pacific Time (1 p.m. Eastern).

The wait for the iPhone 5 has been a long one. Many had expected Apple to deliver a radical redesign when the company unveiled the iPhone 4S last fall, but all the rumors about larger screens and tapered casings proved false when Apple unveiled a phone that was virtually identical to the last version.

The 4S was technically Apple's fifth iPhone, but observers soon transferred the "iPhone" label to the next version. Rumors and alleged leaks have continued, and although Apple has confirmed nothing, there is a consensus about some of the features the next iPhone will have.

A larger screen appears almost a certainty — most rumors and supposed component photos point to the iPhone 5 having a 4-inch screen. Apple is apparently going to shrink the dock connector in an effort to keep the product as thin as possible, though that will mean users will need an adapter to connect the phone to older accessories. And a high-speed LTE connection appears a certainty.

One thing guaranteed is that the new iPhone will ship with iOS 6, the mobile software Apple revealed in June.

While the new iPhone will be the clear headliner at the event, Apple will probably reveal other products as well, such as a refreshed iPod lineup (before iPhone launches were moved to the fall, the company's September events traditionally focused on the iPod).

The company may also unveil an iPad Mini, a smaller-screen version of its popular iPad tablet, although recent rumors have pegged that release to take place later in the fall.

User beware

Most Facebook apps can post behind your back

How many apps have you installed on Facebook? More importantly, how many of them could post something in your name right now, without your knowledge? Chances are, it's more than half of them.

Privacy protection company Secure.me analyzed some 500,000 Facebook apps and shared the results exclusively with Mashable. The biggest takeaways: 63 percent of those apps ask for the ability to post on your behalf — and 69 percent of them can grab your e-mail address.

"It has become second nature to connect various apps like Instagram, SocialCam, AngryBirds, CityVille and Spotify to your Facebook ID," says Secure.me founder Christian Sigl. "You just click 'agree' without even really knowing what you are agreeing to. What you don't realize is that social apps linked to your Facebook profile can pretty much track your and your friends' whole life.

"It doesn't matter what your privacy settings are, the apps still get this information."

Not only could app makers effectively hack your Timeline and sell your e-mail address to any unscrupulous buyer — they're also potentially well on the way to stealing your identity. Some 30 percent of those apps know their users' birthdates, which would in theory allow them to uncover their social security numbers.

The permission puts your friends at risk, too. According to Secure.me, 21 percent of apps — 1 in every 5 — can access the personal data of the user's friends, including friends' birthdays, education and work history.

► Stosur is no longer champion: She lost to Victoria Azarenka in yesterday's quarterfinals.

KELLY BRANAN/USANA

Inside the mind (and body) of a tennis champ

► Last year's US Open singles winner, Samantha Stosur, talks health with us ► Good news: She's a real person who likes to dine out

Samantha Stosur has won 23 doubles and three singles championships, including the 2011 U.S. Open. The Australian, a brand ambassador for USANA Health Sciences and an ASICS-sponsored athlete, has traveled the globe playing tennis since she was a teenager. "Packing suitcases isn't my favorite thing to do," Stosur jokes on her first day back in New York, five days before the 2012 U.S. Open. We spoke to her about the diet and fitness routines that lead her to victory.

STOSUR

What's your diet like?

It's not easy when you've got to eat out all the time. Restaurant food tastes fantastic, but I'm sure it's not all that good for you. I try to keep everything in moderation. You learn to find what works for you. I always keep my immune system going with vitamins as a back-up. You have to be careful; since having Lyme [disease], I've become more aware. I listen to my body and what it needs.

How many hours a day do you spend training?

It depends on the time of year and what's coming up. Preseason, I do two to three hours' fitness each day, then a tennis session. As you get closer to a tournament, you drop back the fitness and concentrate on being on court, [usually about] three hours each day.

What's in your gym routine?

Weights, squats, lunges, chin-ups and a lot of core stability exercise. I do endurance on a bike. Preseason I'll do boxing sessions and swimming and indoor rock climbing. I try to do stuff that I can't do during tournaments; it makes it a lot more enjoyable to mix it up. How do you protect your joints? For any professional athlete, in the long run it isn't that healthy. ... I had Lyme disease four years ago — the doctors told me I have to be wary of joint problems. Also, [instead] of pounding your joints on a treadmill, I use a bike or swimming to avoid extra wear.

Take the Foot Health Checkup

- My toenails are streaked, discolored, thickened.
- The side of my toenails dig into the skin and hurt.
- I have a large bump behind my big toe (or little toe) which is always red.
- I get an extremely painful "cramp" in the area of my third and fourth toes when wearing shoes.
- My toes aren't straight – they are crooked, bent and hurt.
- I have painful calluses on the ball of my foot which keep building up.
- I have corns on my toes which get thicker no matter what shoe size I wear.
- The bottom of my heel hurts all day, but it's worse when I step out of bed in the morning.
- I have cramps in my legs which always happen when I walk the same distance.
- My ankles are swollen most of the time.
- My feet are always dry and scaly – sometimes they itch.
- My feet just hurt all over when I stand or walk a lot.
- I have numbness, burning, infection, persistent pain, skin rash, or open sores.

Letters

letters@metro.us

Mileage mandate puts all lives in the (too) fast lane

Will Obama send condolence letters to the families of those killed in the proposed 2025 cars? It is a fact that in a collision, the occupants in a heavier car have a greater chance of survival and avoidance of injury than those in a smaller car. As a pilot and a occasional motorcycle driver, I can justify voluntary risk. Getting a lightweight car to go faster than 50 miles per hour was done years ago with the GEO Metro. But a fleet average 54.5 means that light cars will get lighter and SUVs and vans will get so flimsy that they will fly apart in an accident. Such lightening of vehicles will mean a guaranteed death sentence to anyone tangling with a 18-wheeler. It is not smart to buy a Smart Car unless you can accept a shortened average life span. Has Obama calculated how much our society will be paying in more medical bills? Or is he counting on lowering the average life span to save Social Security and Medicare?

JOSEPH DUPONT, TOWANDA, PA.

Solid, successful marriages are great — even gay ones

RE: "MARRIAGE IS WHAT BRINGS SOCIETY TOGETHER TODAY" (METRO, SEPT. 4) Jason Lee argues that "thousands of years of recorded history have shown that a monogamous, permanent, heterosexual relationship benefits the people involved as well as society — whereas other relationships do not have this same benefit." What goes unrecorded, unfortunately, is the countless gay couples who have stepped in to raise kids and maintain a sense of family where heterosexual relationships have failed. Here's one, Mr. Lee: If gays are not permitted to marry, then maybe heteros shouldn't be permitted to divorce.

LOU ERICSON, JERSEY CITY, N.Y.

A truly successful, solid, traditional marriage is a beautiful thing. But then, so is a truly successful, solid, nontraditional marriage, like mine. Bob and I have been married (completely committed) for more than 47 years, the second-longest of anyone in our building. Everybody we know, including children, consider us to be a family.

Our contributions to society include paying far more than our share of taxes.

DICK ZIEGENFUSS, NYC

GOP's got people feeling lucky again

The RNC convention was a success. I did feel a sense of patriotism and pride in the USA and finally some hope. Yes, there was some rambling and a little weirdness by Hollywood legend Clint Eastwood. However, he made his point. If you don't do your job, then you have to go. President Obama is a nice man and he tried. However, he is in over his head. This happens; now we move forward and elect real leaders and begin with a fresh start. Gov. Romney and Congressman Ryan will lay out their plans for jobs, fiscal responsibility and how to get this economy going at the debates. We will finally have real "hope and change" — and not some punch line.

JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Should you find yourself facing a situation similar to one you handled successfully once before, don't try to do anything different. What worked well in the past will work well again.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Financial trends appear to be exceptionally encouraging for you at this point in time. Now is the day to look for ways to make extra funds and get rid of old debts.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Partnership arrangements tend to have better chances for success at this time than do solo efforts. Should you form an alliance, you will need to play a strong supportive role.

Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Strong, beneficial interests will be favoring you at this point in time. Dedicate all your efforts toward generating as much income as you possibly can.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. When and where there is a need to assert authority, do so without any hesitation. You'll instinctively know how to do so in ways that won't cause others to take offense.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. You'll have a special knack for ably managing matters that have stumped all previous comers. You might have to utilize this gift in two cases.

Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Your judgment is excellent at this juncture, and all involved should benefit. A critical decision is likely to be required that will affect others as well.

Aries March 21-April 19. Both buying and selling will be wise things for you to do. This is because you'll be equally as shrewd a purchaser as you are a producer. Do what suits your needs.

Taurus April 20-May 20. You'll be equally as adept at figuring out what will sell as you are getting the help you need to produce it. You may find both assets among people you already know.

Gemini May 21-June 20. Do your best to perform at a top level instead of doing just enough to be acceptable. Accomplishing something significant will be noted and rewarded by the powers that be.

Cancer June 21-July 22. Chances are there is plenty of justification for your expectations to be running high at this time. You are now in a cycle where some remarkable things can be accomplished.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is a strong possibility that you will be a bit luckier than usual where your career and/or earnings are concerned. Take measures to produce something ambitious and wide-ranging.

mingle

► The biggest fashion party is back for its fourth installment

► But this year you're not going to wait 30 minutes in line just to score some watered-down

Dark 'n' Stormys

► You're going to rage at Tracy Reese's dance party, belt your rendition of 'Call Me Maybe' for Michael Kors, share cookies with Karlie Kloss and make out with Kellan Lutz

► Maybe not that last part, but we've got your guide to a good time

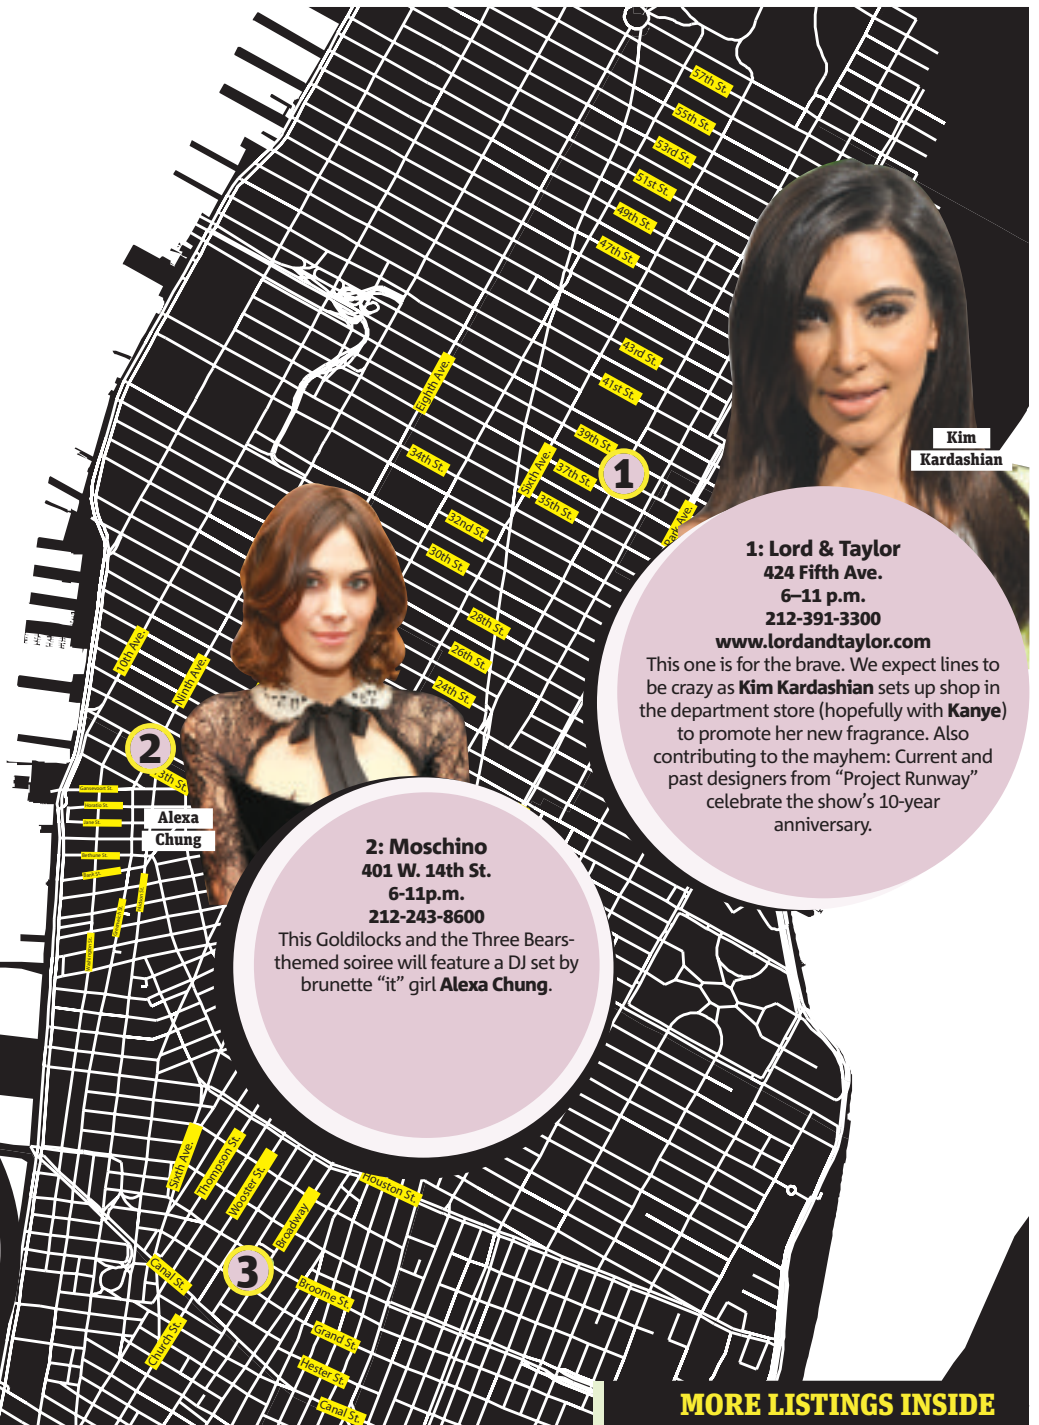

Azealia Banks

3: MAC

fashion's night out

► Karlite Kloss also bakes cookies.

Highlights:
Soho

DKNY
420 W. Broadway
6–10 p.m.
646-613-1100
www.dkny.com
We're calling it: This is the cutest event of the night. Lauren Bush-Lauren and Karlite Kloss team up for an old-fashioned bake sale to benefit the FEED foundation. Kloss will launch her cookie line with Momofuku Milk Bar, Karlite's Kookies, which her model pals Jordan Dunn and Toni Garrn will help serve. Proceeds from the treats and a percentage of event sales will go to FEED.

Helmut Lang
6–11 p.m.
93 Mercer St.
212-242-3240
www.helmutlang.com
Helmut Lang leads the way for a night of music. On the bill: Brooklyn-band La Sera and a DJ set from Sweden-based electro pop duo Icona Pop. Then enjoy ice cream sandwiches from the Coolhaus truck or a Heineken and cocktails courtesy of Death + Company. A raffle with $250, $500 and $1,000 gift cards will also be up for grabs.

Piperlime
6–11 p.m.
121 Wooster St.
212-343-4284
www.piperlime.com
Although Piperlime pop-up stores have emerged in NYC in the past, this is the first one to stay. Celebrate the grand opening of their permanent digs with Rachel Zoe and Olivia Palermo while listening to the sounds of Rev Run & DJ Ruckus.

Tiffany & Co.
6–11 p.m.
106 Wooster St.
212-755-8000
www.tiffany.com
Fifth Avenue icon Tiffany & Co. moved downtown. To make nice with their artsy SoHo neighbors, they've invited photographer Sean Sullivan of the Tumblr The Impossible Cool (7–8 p.m.) to hang out. Shoppers enjoy cotton candy ice cream cones and mini chocolate bars while creating their own art on a digital graffiti wall.

United Colors of Benetton
6–10 p.m.
135 Crosby St.
800-535-4491
www.benetton.com
The sweater just got seductive. Part modern art gallery, part pop-up store, this exhibition celebrates Benetton's sweaters through a collection of knit objects. The installation, called "Lana Sutra," features wool-covered, life-sized figures posing in "Kama Sutra" positions.

Vince Camuto
532 Broadway
6–10 p.m.
646-532-2684

SPEED RUSH

Quoted

“Probably when they scout you, they say, ‘He’s an All-Pro,’ but so are Tuck and Osi. They’re All-Pro too.”

GIANTS DE JASON PIERRE-PAUL

► Giants defensive line not just among league best, but best of all time ► Tuck, Umenyiora, Pierre-Paul present impossible matchups for opposing coaches ► And they want to be better

The Giants enter Wednesday night’s opener with an advantage not many teams in the history of the NFL have ever had — a bonafide front-four pass rush that can single-handedly control a game.

Led by customary Pro Bowlers Justin Tuck and Osi Umenyiora and rising star Jason Pierre-Paul, the Giants’ pass rush even has a snazzy nickname to match immortal greats like the “Fearsome Foursome,” the “Purple People Eaters” and the “Steel Curtain.” New York’s “NASCAR” pass-rush lineup is unquestionably the best in the league today and with two Super Bowl titles in their possession, the Tuck and Umenyiora regime is well within reach of that same all-time elite status.

“They’re a formidable group,” said defensive line coach Robert Nunn. “They’ve all come in a good frame of mind, they all work very hard, and I’m very pleased with where they are right now. ... [But] there are a lot of areas we’ve talked about in the off-season. I’ve got all of the good plays on cutups [game film], and the bad ones, too. If we can clean up some of the things we need to focus on, I think we can make even bigger improvements.”

Improvement should be a scary thought for opposing teams, as the “NASCAR” squad is the standard bearer of front-four pass rushing units. And despite having an elite quarterback to key the offense in what is now a pass-happy league, they’re proud to admit they think Big Blue’s success hinges on their ability to control a game.

► Jason Pierre-Paul led the Giants and was fourth in the NFL with 16.5 sacks last season. Justin Tuck, right, expects to bounce back from an injury-plagued season.

Who’s fastest?

Defensive coordinator Perry Fewell said he has a hard time figuring out which guy gets off the line first at the snap.

► “It’s hard to find out who’s the quickest and who’s the fastest. Some days I look and say, ‘JPP (Pierre-Paul) looks great today.’ But then Osi comes flying off the end and I’m saying, ‘Wow, that’s pretty fast,’” Fewell said. “Then Tuck makes a move and I’m scratching my head.”

“We definitely shoot for getting off to fast starts, especially with our D-line,” said Tuck. “Everyone knows that when we play well, this team, this defense plays well. A lot of pressure is on us, but we like it that way. Hopefully we can set the tone early.”

Defensive tackle Chris Canty, who’ll have a great look at his brethren during his stay on the physically unable to perform list, joked that when the defensive line is rolling, it “looks like the varsity playing against the JV.”

Eli Manning in control of offensive unit

Tom Coughlin doesn’t mince words when talking about how much he believes in the signal caller of his team’s offense.

He was asked Monday what intangibles Eli Manning had. His response, “You name it.”

Manning won his second Super Bowl and second Super Bowl MVP last season against the Patriots. He put those “elite” questions to bed once and for all.

► Manning

“He’s intelligent and he’s got great pride. He has a burning desire to be the best that he can possibly be. He has great timing. He has the ability to understand exactly what you want to do and what the defense is doing,” Coughlin said. “He’ll talk to you about it and get the ball into the right receiver. He does a great job in the classroom. He does a great job representing the Giants. He has outstanding character. He has outstanding leadership. People listen to what he says.”

Manning threw for 67 yards shy of 5,000 last season. It’s no wonder Coughlin can’t stop heaping on the praise. ● METRO

ONE LAST CHANCE

► Is Rex Ryan on the hot seat? ► He doesn't seem to think so ► Just don't ask the fans what they think about their vociferous coach if they miss the playoffs again ► He doesn't expect that to happen again

When he became the Jets' head coach in 2009, Rex Ryan talked about his goal of winning the Super Bowl at his introductory press conference. There was nothing surprising about his statements; it is common for a new coach to speak with lofty ambitions.

But as days turned into weeks, then months and years, every time Ryan spoke it seemed like he was promising the fan base a Vince Lombardi Trophy. He has yet to deliver on that promise.

But he isn't backing away from the challenge. In fact, Ryan has upped the ante.

"In my opinion, I think this has a chance to be the best team that I've had since I've been the coach here," Ryan said last week.

It's the kind of bold talk that makes Jets fans love their coach, but makes it impossible for him to ever live up to expectations. The team collapsed down the stretch last year, and an offense that was anemic during the final quarter of last season didn't make significant

"I know I'm a great coach. ... It's hard for me to look at myself as not being successful. I don't see [getting fired] as a possibility."

REX RYAN, ON JOB SECURITY

upgrades.

One of the nine head-coaching hires in the league in 2009, only Ryan and Detroit's Jim Schwartz remain as NFL head coaches. All the others were dumped by their teams. He must be doing something right, but the pressure is clearly on in his fourth season and he had better produce a title.

His all-time record in the regular season as he enters his fourth year is 28-20 — not bad by any means, but considering the team he inherited, there hasn't been significant progress. Factor in that the crosstown Giants have won the Super Bowl twice in the last four years, and a mediocre season with the Jets could land their head coach on the hot seat.

Or perhaps even the unemployment line.

Not surprisingly, Ryan disagrees. He set the bar high: This is, after all, the "best team" he's had with the Jets. Anything less than the Super Bowl is now a disappointment, even if conventional wisdom holds that the Jets merely making the postseason after last year's collapse would be an accomplishment.

"I know I'm a great coach, and what makes me a great coach is the guys that coach with me and the guys that play for me. It's hard for me to look at myself as not being successful," Ryan said Monday afternoon on ESPN Radio's "Michael Kay Show." "I don't see [getting fired] as a possibility. One day, it might be 10 years from now or 15 years from now when Woody Johnson wants to go in a different direction, and that's fine."

 KRISTIAN DYER
sports@metro.us

.375

The only other coach hired before the 2009 season — Detroit's Jim Schwartz — has a winning percentage of just .375 (18-30). Ryan's winning percentage is .583 (28-20).

Offense could hold key to 2012 success for Jets

GETTY IMAGES

► Antonio Holmes was the problem more than the solution last year.

Coaches like to save their touchdowns for games that count. But going without a score for the first three preseason games was not what Rex Ryan had in mind.

The biggest question for the Jets this season revolves around the effectiveness of the offense — and not just the Wildcat package installed for Tim Tebow. The first-team offense went without a touchdown all preseason.

"I'm pretty sure there are [people doubting our offense], but that's not one of my concerns. Neither should it be [for] anyone else that wears a green jersey," wide receiver Antonio Holmes said. "It's not how many people [are] doubting us; it's about what we believe in in this locker room." ● METRO

NFL season predictions ... sure to go wrong

The grid: We'd bet it with our money ★★★ | We'd bet it with your money ★★ | Fat chance ★ | by Mark Osborne

Super Bowl picks?

Answer: Packers over Ravens

By: Mark Osborne, Metro New York sports editor

Confidence level: ★★★ Green Bay definitely has something to prove after a choke job in the NFC divisional round last year to the Giants. There's no reason to think they won't be right back in the same position this season ... and finish.

Answer: Patriots over Saints

By: Mike Greger, Metro Philadelphia sports editor
Confidence level: ★★★ Drew Brees is on a mission in the aftermath of Bountygate, but he'll fall one drive short — on his home turf — against Tom Brady and the NFL's most prolific offense. The Pats are too loaded.

Answer: Patriots over Bears

By: Matt Burke, Metro Boston sports editor
Confidence level: ★★★ Homer pick. But have you seen the Pats' schedule? It's the easiest in the NFL. Chicago pops up as an elite NFC team every other year, it seems. Here's saying Brandon Marshall has a huge 2012.

Losers

Will the Dolphins finish with the worst record?

Answer: Yes.

Confidence level: ★★

You'd have to be as smart as Ryan Tannehill to pick the Dolphins to have a successful season. They've basically forfeited the year (bye, Vontae Davis) to rebuild for 2013. And they're going to get a nice pick to start off. Better start scouting who else has a hot wife.

Which QB will be Arizona's top pick in '13?

Answer: Matt Barkley

Confidence level: ★★★

Who ya got? Kevin Kolb? John Skelton? A Juggs machine pointed at Larry Fitzgerald each snap? We know they're going to take a QB next year. Why not take USC's Matt Barkley? He is the most logical choice.

Hopefully he works out better than Matt Leinart.

New faces

Who will be Offensive Rookie of the Year?

Answer: Andrew Luck (Ind.)

Confidence level: ★★★

It's hard to pick against the current and future savior of Indianapolis on this one. To be fair, he looked really good in the preseason. Robert Griffin III is going to struggle big time, by the way. The defensive lines in the NFC East will have him limping off the field.

Who will be Defensive Rookie of the Year?

Answer: Mark Barron (TB)

Confidence level: ★

Granted Nick Saban and Alabama have already replaced him with someone better, but Barron is a great safety. He'll be allowed to freelance in the secondary and will definitely come up with a bunch of picks.

Will the real officials ever come back?

Answer: Yes. Money. Yes.

Confidence level: ★★★

The first few weeks will probably be ugly with scab officials. But don't worry, the real officials will be ready to make different, equally puzzling mistakes once they settle in a few weeks. Give the poor guys a raise, Roger!

Injuries

Will Peyton Manning's neck last a season?

Answer: Yes. (Fingers crossed.)

Confidence level: ★★

With everyone caught up in the drama of Peyton Manning's move to Denver and Tim Tebow's subsequent ouster, people seem to be forgetting Manning's surgically fused spinal column. Please don't come unfused. (That's a word, right?)

Will Adrian Peterson's knee be fine?

Answer: Yes.

Confidence level: ★★

Have you seen that dude with his shirt off? It's absurd. I'm surprised his knee ligaments could blow out in the first place. Aren't they made of steel cable? He'll be fine. This message brought to you by my fantasy team.

Will Mike Vick be injured before or after the Eagles' bye week?

Answer: Yes. Just yes.

Confidence level: ★★★

The Eagles could hypothetically be a good team. But if they're going to make the playoffs, they'll probably need Nick Foles to be good.

Relationships

Bigger disaster: Longoria-Sanchez or Tebow-Sanchez?

Answer: Tebow-Sanchez

Confidence level: ★★

This one is very close, mainly because we see both relationships going up in flames within a few months. Now if only we could get Eva Longoria to dump Mark Sanchez for Tim Tebow. It's almost too totally awesome to comprehend.

Off the field

After a year off, is Brett Favre really retired?

Answer: Yes! Finally!

Confidence level: ★

Our long national nightmare is over. Hopefully. Unless Brett Favre pulls a Roger Clemens and decides to play for an Arena Football League team "just for fun" and then decides to join the Cardinals. Damn. That's totally going to happen, isn't it?

Better fast-food clerk: T.O. or Ochocinco?

Answer: Chad Johnson

Confidence level: ★★

You have to make money somehow. There's nothing wrong with ending your career working at a McDonald's drive-thru. We already know neither of these guys is good at listening to orders though.

Finally Mark Sanchez scored a touchdown. Just not on the field.

2012 NFL SEASON: CAN'T-MISS GAMES

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

GETTING TO KNOW YOU

WEEK 1: STEELERS AT BRONCOS

Peyton is back. The biggest wild card in the NFL this season is Denver. If Peyton Manning returns to form, the Broncos could very well be in the thick of the AFC race. Denver's "D" finished 24th in total defense in 2011, but Vonn Miller and Co. have the potential to be a top-10 unit.

WEEK 2: RAVENS AT EAGLES

Look out, Mike! Mike Vick had a pair of scary injury situations in the preseason. Though Baltimore's defense is now bordering on ancient, Ray Lewis and Ed Reed should bring the heat at Lincoln Financial Field in Week 2. Philly has cupcakes in Week 1 (Cleveland) and

► Peyton Manning

Week 3 (Arizona), and you know Andy Reid would love to be 3-0 heading into a Week 4 showdown against the Giants.

WEEK 3: PATRIOTS AT RAVENS

Billy Cundiff drinks alone. Kicker Billy Cundiff won't be able to redeem himself in this game after blowing that 32-yard field goal (he recently signed in Washington), but the AFC Championship Game rematch will still have plenty of drama. If the Patriots can get past Baltimore here, another 16-0 regular season could be a talking point on Monday, Sept. 24.

WEEK 4: GIANTS AT EAGLES

NFC B-east. This division should be the best in football, and the winner of this Week 4 showdown will give us an early idea of who will be in the driver's seat come late December. The Giants won in Philly at the same time of year last season, but the Eagles got revenge in the Meadowlands just prior to Thanksgiving.

Michael Vick could have Philly at 3-0 heading into their Week 4
matchup with the Super Bowl champs.

HOLIDAY HELPINGS

WEEK 13: STEELERS AT RAVENS

Changing of the guard? Don't adjust your TV sets. For the first time in this storied rivalry, the combatants rely more on high-octane offenses over hard-hitting defenses. Last year, the Ravens swept the series.

WEEK 14: TEXANS AT PATRIOTS

Battle for AFC supremacy. With Arian Foster leading an unstoppable rushing attack, the Texans are out to prove they're more than just one-hit wonders. This could easily be an AFC Championship preview.

WEEK 15: GIANTS AT FALCONS

Showdown at the Georgia Dome. The Falcons were ► Aaron Rodgers is poised for a 5,000-yard passing season.

WHAT DO WE HAVE HERE?

WEEK 5: BRONCOS AT PATRIOTS

Brady vs. Manning. The league's signature individual rivalry of the past decade returns. Brady and Patriots beat Manning and the Colts, 31-28, in Foxboro on Nov. 21, 2010, in the last meeting between the two future Hall of Famers. The Broncos will also be peeved because the Pats pounded them in the divisional round last January.

WEEK 7: JETS AT PATRIOTS

Turning point for NYJ. Who knows where the Jets will be at this point? Tim Tebow could be starting at quarterback. Or Mark Sanchez could be thriving there. The NYJ could either be in first place in the AFC East or (gulp) without a win. This will either be a classic Patriots-Jets war, or New England could put the final nail in the coffin of the Rex Ryan era. Regardless, we'll be watching.

WEEK 8: GIANTS AT COWBOYS

Halloween havoc. The Cowboys had little luck with the G-Men last season, going 0-2 against their division foes. This rematch of tonight's NFL season opener is one of the few marquee games on a relatively weak Week 8 slate.

WEEK 11: PACKERS AT LIONS

Detroit Rock City. The Pack have had their way with the NFC North for the past couple of seasons, but the times may be a'changin'. If Matt Stafford and Megatron are clicking, Detroit could leave Week 11 in first place.

pull one last rabbit out of his hat?

WEEK 17: EAGLES AT GIANTS

Division crown on the line? Anything and everything can and usually does happen when these two meet at the Meadowlands. Remember DeSean Jackson and the punt return? Set the DVR and expect the unexpected. Who knows, the NFC East title may be on the line.

absolutely inept in their playoff loss to Big Blue, forcing Atlanta to change their philosophy. They're now a pass-first offense that has had this one marked since last winter.

WEEK 16: CHARGERS AT JETS

Playoff slot on the line? The Chargers and Jets usually enter with Super Bowl aspirations, but their windows seem to be closing. Can Tim Tebow provide some sparks? Can Philip Rivers

Giants build bridge to title

Each year, head coach Tom Coughlin comes up with a slogan to define that year's team.

Last year's Super Bowl march was punctuated by the phrase "All in." In the attempt to repeat as champions, Coughlin has chosen the phrase "Build the Bridge."

"'Build the Bridge' means to carry over all the good things that happened at the end of the season last year over into the new season," Coughlin said. "The qualities that allowed us to go forward and win the world championship. Some of those would be: During the course of the last six games we gave up 14 points; We only had one turnover; our special teams made a strong contribution; we rushed the ball better. Those types of things."

Fans on the outside may scoff at millionaire athletes needing a slogan to get pumped up to do their job. But the players clearly buy in, starting with the captains and filtering down to the players who weren't on last year's title team.

"It definitely should [carry over]," safety and emotional leader Antrel Rolle said. "We won't be able to say whether or not there is a carryover until Wednesday night. If we go out there and play with the performance that we know we can give and hopefully there is some carryover, which we all are looking forward to. We're trying to make a mark for ourselves." ● MARK OSBORNE

Tony Romo will be targeting a weakened Giants' secondary.

STORYLINES TO WATCH

- Week 1: New York Giants vs. Cowboys, MetLife Stadium
- When: 8:30 p.m., NBC ► What's next: Tampa Bay, Sept. 16

1 An aerial display is likely from both sides.

Both teams head into the opener with question marks in their secondary.

The Cowboys' back four were among the worst last season, which led to their overhaul. Dallas made off-season news by signing former Chiefs corner Brandon Carr and also made a draft-day trade to select former LSU star corner Morris Claiborne.

The Giants, meanwhile, have their own problems. Terrell Thomas (ACL), is on injured reserve for the second-straight season and his backup, Prince Amukamara, is out with a high-ankle sprain. Veteran Michael Coe will start opposite Corey Webster, but although he's played in 27 games, Coe has never started and will be a target of Tony Romo.

2 Will Hakeem Nicks be the same impact player?

Head coach Tom Coughlin said he "thinks [Hakeem Nicks] will play" but if you ask Nicks, who still has some soreness in his surgically repaired foot, he has "no doubt" he will be on the field.

But how effective will he be? The wide-out has had little work since breaking his foot on May 24 and spent most of training camp on the physically unable-to-perform list. He only began practicing on Aug. 20 and played in the final preseason game last week against the Patriots, catching just one pass for six yards. He is still a question mark for now.

3 Will Dallas miss Bennett now that he's gone?

Newest Giants' tight end — and former Cowboy — Martellus Bennett insists that playing against his former team won't fuel him more than usual, but was quick to acknowledge the irony of his situation.

"It is kind of ironic, because [Cowboys tight end Jason] Witten is a guy who never missed a game or practice when I was there," Bennett said. "So the day when I'm not there, he may be out for the first game, which is very ironic."

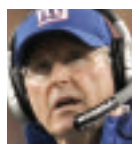

The Giants plan to use him extensively.

Coughlin won't comment on fill-in officials

If you don't have anything nice to say, then don't say anything at all.

That was the approach Giants head coach Tom Coughlin used when asked about the replacement officials that will be in command of tonight's game against the Cowboys. The officials union and NFL reportedly met over the Labor Day weekend, but still couldn't come to an agreement on a new contract.

"I'm staying away from that. I've already said what I'm trying to say on that and I certainly understand the position that those gentlemen are in and I wish them nothing but the best and hope that they know the rules," Coughlin said. "They can be spontaneous, instinctive and control the game."

The fact that Coughlin would even mention that he "hopes they know the rules" can't mean good things for a group that has been blasted throughout the preseason.

Azarenka may be only one who can stop Williams

Victoria Azarenka was born in Minsk, Belarus, and lives in Monte Carlo. But she is quickly making New York another home.

"I love New York," the world's No. 1-ranked player said after advancing to the semifinals of the U.S. Open for the first time with a 6-1, 4-6, 7-6 (5) victory over defending champion Samantha Stosur in quarterfinal that was interrupted by a one-hour, 17-minute rain delay after three games in Arthur Ashe Stadium. "I feel like it's a great place, just a beautiful city. It's one of my favorite places in the world."

Next up for the outgoing and charismatic Azarenka, 23, is a semifinal date with either Maria Sharapova or Marion Bartoli on Friday.

After that, Azarenka could potentially face Serena Williams in the final. Williams, the winner of 14 career majors, ► Victoria Azarenka is ranked No. 1, but she's gotten little attention so far at the U.S. Open.

is just about everybody's favorite to win her fourth Open and 15th major.

"If anybody's going to beat her, they have to play very well, be aggressive, hit winners, not give her anything and try and temper her serve," Stosur said. "Serena, when she's on, is pretty tough to beat."

Still, if anyone can stop the Serena Express, it might just be Azarenka, who won her only Grand Slam over Sharapova at the Australian Open in January.

3 Design trends

► We scoured the New York International Gift Fair for the latest and greatest in home design ► Here's a tip: Don't toss out your mom's old blue-and-white porcelain dishes just yet

Twice each year, Javits Center in New York City is packed with the latest and greatest in lamps, rugs, salad bowls and more as the New York International Gift Fair displays housewares to store buyers and media outlets. Here are three trends to note before you start re-decorating your digs.

Linen with sparkle

Natural linen was everywhere: on furniture upholstery, pillows, bedding and tabletop goods. Threads of metallic, shiny trims and adornments helped to decorate this rather plain, humble fabric. One designer who stood out was Ann Gish (maker of high-end luxury bedding), who incorporated a hand-painted look of shimmer or sparkle into the fabric.

Ann Gish Gorgeous bedding, $400-$1,800, www.anngish.com

1970s Marrakech

The geometrics of the 1970s took a sophisticated turn this season by incorporating richer colors that resembled patterns often found in Moroccan textiles, rugs and ceramics. Zig-zag, fish scales and tilework were three hot looks, and famed designer

Jonathan Adler nailed them all with his Carnaby collection of lamps, trays and mugs.

Large Carnaby Flame lamp, $295, www.jonathanadler.com

Feeling blue

One of the old-time design classics has been given resurgence in the contemporary world — many hip exhibitors were showing products that resembled blue-and-white porcelain. This classic color combination looks great with warm neutrals and can also hold its own against strong bursts of color. Ink Dish's Irezumi four-piece dinner set, designed by famed Sunset Strip tattoo artist Paul Timman, features iconic blue-and-white Japan-inspired imagery. $75, www.inkdish.com

Beyond the recliner

► If you must have a neon sign, at least let it lead to the drinks.

► Man Cave Kingdom wants to seriously hook up your basement ► Of course, they're also happy to revamp your airplane hangar

Despite being inducted into the Merriam-Webster dictionary this year, the term "man cave" is a divisive one. Critics imagine a smoky suburban basement, riddled with sports memorabilia and neon beer signs. Enthusiasts imagine pretty much the same scenario, plus a pinball machine. Joe Chiaccio saw only one thing when he set out to renovate his own basement: the potential to make quite a bit of money.

"A couple years ago, I inherited my great-grandfather's pool table and I started to look around online for things that I'd use to decorate and finish my man cave," he remembers. "A lot of places left a lot to be desired. It almost seemed like people were treating it as a joke. But it's a really serious thing: Guys, if they have the means, will

"It almost seemed like people were treating it as a joke. But it's a really serious thing: Guys, if they have the means, will spend tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars on their man caves."

spend tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars on their man caves."

Chiaccio's New Jersey-based online store and design service, Man Cave Kingdom, does offer some of the kitsch we've come to expect. But along with the requisite "Live Nudes" sign, the site also offers designer furniture and custom-built kegerators that would look right at home in an upscale kitchen (and, with some going for more than $2,000, they should).

For the man with a cave but no design sense, Chiaccio and his team (which, yes, includes women) will custom-build any space — from a small shed to the 10,000-square-foot airplane hangar they converted just outside Boston.

No matter your restrictions, Chiaccio says that creating the perfect space is actually pretty simple. "There's kind of a holy trinity of the man cave: the bar, the TV setup and the kegerator. That's really all you need right there."
